

Official Languages in Education Program (OLEP)

Catch-up funding required

Over the past ten-plus years, the value of federal government funding provided to provincial and territorial ministries of Education has been eroded due to the cost-of-living increase and rising enrolments in French-language minority schools.

Consequently, as part of its official language obligations, the federal government must increase these funding envelopes, which have remained largely unchanged since 2009.

Below are actualized values for the $749.8 million 2009-2013 agreement:

2009	$5,221 per student		44% reduction
2013	$4,726 per student
2018	$3,663 per student
2023	$2,910 per student

The next OLEP (2023-2028) valued at $1,440.5 million

Considering the cost-of-living increase, actual federal investments in 2023 will be 35% lower than those of 2003: a $455 million funding deficit. ¹

As well, in order to account for the increased number of students in our schools ², an additional 20% must be invested: $240 million in additional funding.

The $745.5 million 2018-2023 agreement + $455 million for the cost of living + $240 million for network growth = a total of $1,440.5 million for the 2023-2028 agreement.

¹ Information taken from the brief La croissance économique, gage de la compétitivité du Canada (2018) by the Association of Colleges and Universities of the Canadian Francophonie (ACUFC)

² Some 174,000 students: an almost 20% increase in enrolments since 2010 - Statistics Canada, Number of students in official languages programs